It is always a pleasure to offer you a good white Little James. Because every moment in life warrants its own wine, we often need a nice, simple, aromatic and fresh wine. Over the past few hundred years, French winegrowers have been unrivalled in the work they have carried out on varietal selection and improvements to that selection. This work is not done by people in white coats in a laboratory but in vineyards and wineries, through passion, hard work and perseverance, until convincing, concrete results are obtained in the form of fine wine. I would like to pay tribute to the many generations of French winegrowers who have left us this extraordinary intangible heritage of the great French grape varieties: Sauvignon, Pinot Noir, Chenin, Cabernet-Sauvignon, Chardonnay, Syrah, Viognier, the list is too long to mention them all. Without this mammoth 'ground' work, I could not make this beautiful wine. In fact, since intangible values such as French gastronomy are listed as UNESCO World Heritage, I suggest that the great French grape varieties should also be classified. At least to thank our well-minded forebears.

Anise, apricot, grapefruit, lychee, boxwood, mango.

Bottled in January 2018.
