The weakest link of Saint Cosme's 2017 négociant bottlings from the Northern Rhône, the 2017 Crozes Hermitage offers concentrated cassis fruit. This medium to full-bodied wine is tight and one-dimensional at the moment, but it shows decent concentration and ripeness. I'm sure it will show better next year.

«Dark cherry and plum compote notes are furrowed by dark anise and bramble accents, giving this texture and range. Fresh acidity drives this along.»

AOP Crozes Hermitage, Saint-Cosme, red, 2017 - Rating 91

Moving to the three Northern Rhône's, the 2017 Crozes Hermitage is outstanding. Loads of red and black fruits, spice, chocolate, and earthy notes flow to a ripe, sexy, medium to full-bodied Crozes that has sweet tannins and loads of upfront charm. Despite its forward style, it has plenty of mid-palate oomph and is going to evolve for over a decade.

CHÂTEAU DE SAINT COSME Crozes-Hermitage 2017, 93 points

«This has attractive poise and very focused feel. The granite is very important, driving a succulent feel and delivering focus to the fruit and tannin. Dark berries, dark cherries and spiced plums abound and there's a smooth and fresh feel to the tannins. Very vibrant with plenty of flavor and dark stones, graphite and toasted spices to close.»
